

Director of the Division of Scientific Services

Organization Name: The Department of Emergency Services & Public Protection
Division of Scientific Services
Post Date: August 13, 2012

The Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection's Director of the Division of Scientific Services administers and directs all activities of the Forensic Science Laboratory. The Division of Scientific Services is comprised of three (3) sections; Toxicology/Controlled Substances and Chemistry; Forensic DNA and Identification (including Firearms, Latent Prints, Document/Question Imprint, Computer Crimes, Photo & Electronic Imaging). Each section provides evidentiary material resulting from criminal and civil actions while meeting all accreditation standards. Our Division of Scientific Services has earned a prestigious reputation and the respect of local, state and federal experts in the field of law enforcement.

General Experience & Training: An advance degree in a forensic science or closely related field with ten (10) years of managerial experience in forensic science or criminal investigations with experience involving the administration of a forensic laboratory.

General Duties & Responsibilities: Supervises the Division's Section Deputy Directors and the Laboratory Quality Assurance Manager; determines appropriate staffing levels and directs management of staff; implements and evaluates division policies; establishes long and short term plans; preparation of the division fiscal budgets; manages and implements all federal and state grants; designs and implements performance review standards for the division; ensures safety and health guidelines are followed; ensures compliance with all standards established as part of the American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors/Laboratory Accreditation Board (ASCLD/LAB) International Accreditation Program and Federal Bureau of Investigations Quality Assurance Standards; researches, develops and implements new forensic technologies. The successful applicant must possess considerable knowledge of management principles and techniques, relevant state and federal laws, statutes and regulations pertaining to the forensic science laboratory management and program evaluation; examination and analytical procedures for evidentiary materials; courtroom procedures related to evidentiary materials in criminal and civil actions; operation of a variety of analytical instrumentation; interpersonal skills; oral and written communication skills; knowledge of theory, principle and practices of forensic in collecting, examining and analyzing evidence in criminal investigations, knowledge of (ASCLD/LAB) American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors/Laboratory Accreditation Board International Accreditation program.

Explore your professional options in beautiful New England. Connecticut is an ideal family setting with excellent public and private school systems. It is an approximate two-hour drive to either New York City or Boston, Massachusetts.

HOW TO APPLY: Interested qualified candidates should submit a resume or C.V. and cover letter by September 21, 2012. Please include your E-Mail Address for future correspondence.

Contact Address: Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection
1111 Country Club Road, Middletown, CT 06457-9294
Contact Name: Marisa Pulito, Human Resources Specialist
Contact Phone (860) 685-8200
Application Deadline: September 21, 2012
Email Contact: marisa.pulito@ct.gov
Contact Fax: (860) 685-8356

PLEASE NOTE: Candidates for employment at the Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection are subject to a detailed background investigation, including federal, criminal and reference checks.